Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Pāli, on a palm leaf manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. The script is finely etched into the surface of the dried leaf. The leaf itself is aged, showing a brownish-tan color with some darker staining and a prominent hole near the center. The text is partially obscured by the hole and the irregular edges of the leaf. The characters are small and closely spaced, typical of traditional South Asian manuscript writing.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Pahlavi, on a fragment of parchment. The text is arranged in approximately seven lines. The parchment is heavily damaged, with significant portions missing from the left edge and a large circular hole near the center.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Tamil, inscribed on a palm leaf manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines across the length of the leaf. The script is finely etched into the surface of the dried leaf. There are two prominent circular holes, which are traditional for threading a cord to bind multiple leaves into a book format. The leaf shows signs of age, including some staining and irregular edges.
